GREETINGS

THE STEPHENS STANDARD is edited by the students of Stephens College. In its columns will be recorded the story of progress and growth as shown in every phase of the life at Stephens. In establishing the Standard, the College expects it not only to afford the students a valuable means of self-expression but also to serve as a part of the laboratory equipment of the English department.

In this inaugural number of The Stephens Standard the editors extend cordial greetings to the students, the faculty, and every other friend of Stephens College.

Enrollment at Stephens Exceeds 500

Dr. W. W. Charters, new educational director is making a study of the curriculum in the light of student needs. "Greater Stephens" destined to be a reality.

THE enrollment at Stephens College has reached 508. This number far exceeds that of preceding years. The increase in the enrollment is viewed with considerable satisfaction by the friends of the college, as it vindicates the action of the board of trustees in inaugurating a new educational policy whose purpose is to scientifically adapt the curriculum and the instruction to the specific needs of the student. The educational director of Stephens College is Dr. W. W. Charters, who was formerly dean of the Department of Education of the University of Illinois. Dr. Charters, with the assistance of the other members of the faculty, is making a study of the methods of instruction employed and is analyzing some of the subject-matter which is taught, with a view to determining its value in a junior college curriculum. He is proceeding upon the idea that a college course justifies itself only through its contribution to efficient living.

Another important step forward is the establishment of a department of religious education under the direction of Miss Burrill, assistant editor of the National Geographic Magazine. Miss Burrill will be in Stephens College next semester to take up her work.

Mrs. J. M. Wood is at present making a study of student life in Eastern colleges for women in order that the very best methods and practices that prevail in other leading colleges may be made a part of the Stephens program—if they have not already been introduced here.

Greater Stephens College is destined to be a reality. The forward movement has begun.

New Methods Introduced

Organizations in future to be managed in businesslike and systematic way. Plan affords training in practical methods of conducting business.

THE need of a more practical business training in college is being met in Stephens by the introduction of business methods and principles into student activities. Under the new educational program, clubs and societies are being reorganized and placed on a firmer basis. In the future they are to be run in a very businesslike and systematic way.

The new method of handling the finance of the organizations has attracted much interest and thus far is proving very satisfactory. All bills are paid by checks on which are the letters "S. C." as well as the name of the organization. Each check must also bear the name or initials of the sponsor. Only checks from a regulation check book are used. All check stubs must be carefully filled out. If the checking account is active, the bank book must be balanced the first of each calendar month.

Each organization is requested to use a uniform ledger. All receipts are entered on the left-hand

Columbia Hall Nearing Completion

New $70,000 dormitory ready for occupancy December 1. New Building is constructed of fireproof material. Growth of College creates great need for further facilities.

COLUMBIA Hall, the new dormitory at Stephens College, erected at a cost of over $70,000 is now nearing completion. According to Davis and Phillips, contractors, it will be ready for occupancy about December 1.

In appreciation of the gifts of Columbia residents and of other Boone County people, the new dormitory has been named Columbia Hall.

In the construction of the building, hydraulic pressed brick has been used. It is absolutely fireproof. The roof of green slate affords an attractive finish. The building is 109 feet long and 48 feet wide. It faces east, forming an inner court and completing the symmetry of the front campus.

The basement will be used for the college post office, and bookstore. Classrooms for botany and English will also be located in the basement. The first floor will contain a suite of rooms on the south side for President and Mrs. Wood. At the north end of the first floor are the parlors, guest rooms for parents and friends of students, a matron's room and a small kitchenette. Students at Stephens last year subscribed very generously to the fund which made possible the addition of the guest rooms. The second and third floors each contain twelve double bedrooms and one single bedroom. Each double bedroom has two closets and a private bath.

The entire dormitory will be furnished in American walnut. Each room will be provided with a dresser, two study tables, two straight chairs upholstered in tapestry, one rocker, and two single beds. The walls will be tinted silver gray throughout. Electrical equipment which has been specially designed for the building will be installed.

"When this dormitory is completed," said President Wood, "it will be one of the best dormitories on any college campus. The great growth of the college," he added, "makes it imperative that still further dormitory facilities be provided if we are going properly to accommodate all the students who apply for admission to Stephens College."

Athletic Awards to Be Given

Stephens girls show new interest in athletics when point system is adopted. Candidates for sweaters must take gymnasium and belong to Athletic Association.

BIG woolen sweaters with the Stephen "S" on them will be given to all the girls who make the required seventy-five points in athletics. These points can be made in about a year and three months. So those who are juniors now will be able to get a sweater next fall. The seniors who make fifty points during the remainder of this year will be awarded an "S" next spring. In case a girl is able to make more than seventy-five points, a star will be given for each twenty-five points above the required number.

There are two conditions that must be met: the girl who expects to receive a sweater must take gymnasium and she must belong to the Athletic Association of the school.

The point system has succeeded in other schools and it is succeeding at Stephens. Already new interest in athletics has been shown. The point system furnishes a better incentive than was formerly supplied by interschool games, for the point system makes it possible for more girls to succeed in athletics and to attain the highest honors. Furthermore, it encourages an all-round development in athletics instead of putting a premium on unusual ability in any one sport.

A girl may make 10 points by becoming a member of the first team in basketball, tennis, volley ball, or baseball. She may make 10 points on hikes—two points for each ten miles. And what is better than a brisk walk on a bright, snappy morning to brush the cobwebs away! She may make 10 points in swimming—one point for floating, one for back dive, one for high dive, etc. She may receive three points for an "E" in gymnasium or two points for an "S" grade in gymnasium. There are other ways in which a girl may earn points, such as making any of the squads or winning first, second, or third place in any track event.

Stephens Y. W. C. A. Raises $1628

Local association plans bigger and better program than ever undertaken before. Campus standards will receive special attention in meetings of the year.

Sixteen hundred and twenty-eight dollars raised for Stephens Y. W. C. A. in one week! Twelve hundred and twenty-six dollars of this sum raised in a single night! The students have approved a $1600 budget for the Y. W. C. A. Six hundred dollars goes to the student loan fund; two hundred to the support of an Armenian girl in Constantinople; two hundred ninety dollars will be used to meet obligations already incurred; two hundred and twenty dollars goes to the conference fund; eighty dollars for publicity, etc.; seventy-five dollars for social activities; eighty-five dollars for social service; and one hundred dollars for unexpected odds and ends.

the local association to gain for itself a place on the "White List" of the national Y. W. C. A. The work for the year has been outlined with this idea in mind. Up to this time the cabinet has been chiefly concerned with the preparation of the budget for the year. The budget provides for a program of constructive Christian work. It was presented to the student body at a mass meeting on Sunday, October 31, and approved. Pledges to the amount of $1,628 have been given, three-fourths of the amount being pledged within a few minutes after the matter was presented. It was urged that each girl give this money out of her regular allowance so that the gift would represent some sacrifice upon her part. In the meetings of the year, campus standards will receive special attention. It is the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. to create higher ideals in the minds of Stephens girls.

THE Y. W. C. A. of Stephens College has planned a bigger and better program than it has ever undertaken before. It is the ambition of

The spirit displayed by the students in the budget campaign is the same spirit of hearty co-operation that has always actuated Stephens progress.

New Bakery Is Installed

Equipment is modern in every respect. Oven has a capacity of 180 one-pound loaves of bread. Cost of these improvements amounts to over $2,500.

HOT rolls, cakes, pies, cream puffs!

The new equipment for the Stephens College bakery has just been installed. The building just south of the kitchen has been remodeled and one room is to be used for a new bakery. This bakery is modern in every respect and is equipped with the latest machinery.

The oven, which has a capacity of 180 one-pound loaves, has a white tile front and is heated by gas. The inside of the oven is automatically lighted when the door is opened.

In connection with the oven will be installed other labor saving devices such as a vegetable cutter and an electric mixer. The total cost of these improvements amounts to over $2,500.

Our Legacy

WE have a treasure to keep—a treasure left by girls of former years. They bequeathed this treasure to us with a prayer that it might be kept untarnished.

The precious treasure that we guard is the reputation of our school. That is our legacy. And we must "keep tryst" with our sisters who have trooped down the stairways, frolicked along the corridors, dreamed dreams, and accomplished things. We are living each day the reputation of Stephens College. May we live it beautifully and earnestly!

The Y. W. C. A.

THE Y. W. C. A. has done and is doing a wonderful work. It means something to every one of its members.

For the girl in the city it means an attractive, well-equipped building where she can swing Indian clubs in a gymnasium and practice the overhand stroke in a swimming pool. It means a place where she can become a member of clubs for playing, clubs for walking, and clubs for "doing." The Association provides a secretary who stands ready to help a girl find the job she needs and the job for which she is fit. It provides convenient cafeterias where a girl may obtain good, wholesome food at a price she can afford to pay. It provides a home for her among congenial companions and an inexpensive vacation during some part of the year.

To the Stephens girl the Y. W. means a chance for Christian leadership. It is essentially her own organization to be conducted, built up, and perfected by her. She gains an opportunity of self-expression through committee work, devotional service, or whatever branch of work may appeal to her.

As a member of the national organization, the Y. W. C. A. at Stephens College must fulfill certain requirements. And in the fulfillment of these requirements we feel ourselves a part of a growing, expanding movement—a movement toward better Christian service through finer Christian womanhood.

The Honor System

"HONOR-BOUND" is the watchword of every conscientious student body. There is an unconscious straightening of the shoulders and lifting of the head when the appeal comes, "I put you on your honor." Self-respect and loyalty to ideals demand that we heed the call. Instantly we become responsible beings, responsible not only for our own honor but also for that of others.

Those of us whose ideals are lax are influenced by a desire for approval. Social ostracism has long been considered a remedy for many moral evils. We need not be tattlers but we can be disapproving onlookers. In the long run, the influence of the latter is always greater than that of the former.

Meeting here at Stephens College as juniors, we can see the difference between new ideas and old. It may be that we have ignored the principle of honor altogether. Or it may have been emphasized objectively, not subjectively. The fear of "being caught" may have been the restraining influence which induced honesty. So our problem, as responsible, conscientious students, is to bring about a universal understanding and adoption of ideals.

Only by working together can we make it a success. We are pioneers as "honor" students, and the attitude of each individual student will help to determine the success or failure of the system.

"Who's Your Friend?"

THE answer is often given as lightly as the question was asked. But do we ever consider the significance of a serious reply? We, as students selecting ideals and standards, may pause for a moment to make a mental survey. Do we discriminate in our associations?

Our friends are just as typical of us as our clothing, our speech, or our personal appearance. There must be a yardstick of a certain length by which we measure our new associates. And in measuring our friends we also measure ourselves.

A Practical Missionary Movement in Missouri

THOSE who recall that when Stephens girls all go to the Baptist church there is not room in the auditorium for anyone else except the preacher, the choir, and the ushers, will understand the need of some new churches in Columbia. The churches of Columbia are excellent churches—but they were built without due consideration of the student population. The movement among Missouri Baptists to erect a quarter-of-a-million-dollar church in Columbia is one of the finest pieces of practical missionary work that has ever been attempted in the state. The state sends its boys and girls to Columbia to obtain educational advantages; and it is now seeing the wisdom and the justice of helping the people of Columbia provide the best religious advantages and opportunities for those boys and girls.

page with a full description of the source. All expenditures must be entered on the right-hand page of the ledger. The date, the number of the check, the person to whom the check was drawn, and the account covered must be stated in each case. Statements must be kept on file and each must bear the number of the check given in payment together with the date and the amount.

The secretary of the school is empowered to call the president, the treasurer, and the sponsor of all organizations in the college to a school of instruction on keeping accounts.

All books are audited by the auditing committee of the college, of which the secretary of the college is a member. Semi-annual financial statements will be made public by each of the organizations except the social ones and will be posted on an official bulletin board after the statements have been approved by the auditing committee.

In this way the members of the different organizations will become acquainted with practical methods of conducting business.

Student Viewpoints

I believe I am learning how to study. College life is teaching me, above all things, to develop regularity of study habits and to cultivate attention and concentration. I haven't time any longer to "fool around" about getting my lessons.

Conditions in the way of social distractions are, I imagine, much the same as they always were. There is still the same old problem of deciding between pleasure and duty, between having a good time and making profitable use of one's time. I am trying hard to keep the maxim in the foreground—that it is good to cultivate friends, but better to make one's self worthy to be cultivated as a friend.

Lessons in etiquette are also a valuable kind of training. Good manners are to education as polish is to a fine stone. I realize that now is my chance not only to cut my stone as large as I can, but also to give it all the luster and finish possible.

—Olivia Noel.

Did you ever stand on the rear platform of a Pullman, as it slowly moved away from the little old red depot, and watch that familiar, smoke-begrimed building grow smaller and smaller, until distance made obscure the tiny dot that meant home, and the only remaining link to daddy and mother was that glistening line of rails? I wonder if you felt the same sensations that I felt. That little red depot had been the border land from which I caught glimpses of that wonderful fairyland of travel and wealth and cities and bright lights, a fairyland which exists in every child's fancy.

Now I see the little depot from the other side,—now it means father and mother and home and all the "used-to-be's" that memory preserves for one. That Pullman brought me to a strange land, indeed,—not a fairyland, but a land of realities. . . .

Sometimes, I feel incapable of facing the flood of new activities. But as a tree that stands alone grows straight and true and strong, I shall learn through self-dependence to meet the strong winds that sweep across the plains of college life. But when the winds blow too strongly, a little wind-break is welcome.

Letters from home are my wind-breaks. My life is wonderful but it is new yet, and those letters represent a stable anchorage on which I may lay my hand, and say, "This is lasting, for it has been proved by the experiences of a dear one." On these wonderful autumn days, I feel almost overwhelmed with love and gratitude for my home. Home has made for me a lovely memory book. Now, I am making it myself and I am striving with my whole heart and soul to make each day as beautiful a memory as those earlier days of home life. Love and gratitude are the two messages I want to send back down the shining rails to the little red depot and the dear ones there. May I never forget the debt I owe them!

The Club Column

Oklahoma Club

The Oklahoma girls met in the student parlors to organize into a club. Lorena Milam was elected president. Lorena Fahrney and Elizabeth Taliaferro were chosen for yell-leaders. The meeting adjourned to the gymnasium where Oklahoma yells and songs were practised. The girls attended the O. U. and M. U. game in a body. This club will prove valuable to Stephens College.

Social Democracy Club

"To promote the study of social, political and historical problems; to increase the interest of Stephens girls in said problems; and to promote social democracy in Stephens College." In these words the constitution of the Social Democracy Club, which was recently organized in Stephens College, states its aim.

At the first meeting the following officers were elected: Ruth Ohmer, president; Virginia Loper, vice-president; and Amelia Foster, secretary. The executive committee is composed of the officers and two other members of the club, Charlotte Rainey and Hazel McClure. The advisers of the committee are Geneva Drinkwater and J. J. Oppenheimer whose services to the club as well as to the committee are invaluable.

On November 10, Mr. Kuhlman, of the University, talked to the club on the "Provision for Care of the Feebleminded." Mr. Kuhlman is connected with the mental survey of school children which is in progress throughout the state of Missouri. He brought some startling facts to the attention of the club and created an interest in this subject.

The next two or three meetings will be given over to the discussion of problems in which the club members are most interested and plans will be made concerning the type of study to be adopted for the coming year.

The Hypatia Club

The Hypatia Club was organized in the fall of 1919 by students taking mathematics. All students taking college mathematics are eligible to full membership and those taking high school mathematics are eligible to associate membership. The mathematics instructor is sponsor of the club. Regular meetings are held once a month, and reports of a mathematical nature are given.

At the last meeting of the year '19-'20, Ruth Sanders was elected president and Carolyn Gray was elected vice-president. The other officers will be elected at the next business meeting.

French Club

The French club held its first meeting of the year Nov. 16 at 4:15. There was a short program consisting of music and readings.

The French club was organized last year. Its membership consists of those in the advanced French class, members of the intermediate French having a grade of seventy-five or above, and those in beginning French having a grade of ninety or above. Any girls who have had two years of French may become members.

When the club was reorganized this fall, Ruth Ohmer was elected president, and Margaret Hays, secretary. The regular meeting will be on the third Tuesday of every month at 4:15.

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club is going to be one of the big organizations of Stephens this year. Any one showing an interest in any phase of dramatics is entitled to membership. The work will be conducted on the group basis, each group having its own special line of work. The groups are: costuming, staging, play writing, pageantry writing, scenario writing, dramatic current events, dramatics and the community, coaching and directing, and acting. The acting group will be sub-divided and each division will put on a play sometime during the year. Miss Forbes, as sponsor, will aid in the coaching of the plays.

The regular meeting of the Dramatic Club will be held the second Wednesday of every month and all members are requested to attend.

Kansas Club

Rock Chalk—Jay Hawk—K—U!

The Kansas Club was organized November 3. There were twenty girls from Kansas present. Lila K. Graham acted as temporary chairman. The following officers were elected: Ruth Ohmer, Wichita, president; Lila K. Graham, Coffeyville, vice-president; and Elinor Kelly, Atchison, secretary and treasurer.

The club is full of characteristic Kansas pep. The members have bought their tickets for the Thanksgiving football game to be played between K. U. and M. U. and they will be there with colors flying.

New Y. W. Members Initiated

THE Y. W. C. A. initiated its new members on the night of November 10. It was an impressive and symbolic service—symbolic of the spirit in which the girls came to lend their aid to the Y. W. C. A. and of the benefits which are to be derived.

All the officers and girls were dressed in white and carried lighted candles as they marched down the aisles to music played by Alice Mace. As a symbol of relinquishment of worldly light all the candles were blown out after the reading of a part of the ceremony. After this the girls marched upon the platform to write their names in the Association book and to light their candles at the "Light of Christ." As they left the platform they were given white carnations. To conclude the ceremony all the girls sang the "consecration song" and repeated the Y. W. C. A. benediction.

Dr. Seashore Conducts Musical Test

DR. C. E. Seashore, a prominent psychologist, recently conducted a series of musical tests for the students of Stephens College. The purpose of these tests was to discover the musical ability of each student and the specific possibilities of training. The sense of pitch, the sense of time, the sense of intensity, the sense of consonance, and auditory memory were tested.

Dr. Seashore is the originator of the psychological musical tests. He was born in Sweden but has spent most of his time in this country. He is now dean of the department of Education of the University of Iowa and president of the American Psychological Association.

Alfred Kreymborg at Stephens

Alfred Kreymborg, a popular exponent of free verse writing, gave readings of his works Tuesday evening, November 9, in the college auditorium.

The program was divided into four parts: the reading of his recent poems, the reading of some of his earlier poems with mandolite accompaniment, the reading of his play "Manikin and Minikin," and the chanting of poems accompanied by music and interpretative dancing by Mrs. Simpson, Blanche Porter, and Gertrude Kahle.

Burrowings and Borrowings

Sometimes we take our shears and attack the columns of other papers; and sometimes we delve into the soil of our own wit hoping to discover some sign of natural ore. We usually discover, however, that the joke we thought was original is one of the heirlooms of the race.

The editor of this column welcomes exchanges from other colleges. Address The Stephens Standard, Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri.

The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.

And, indeed, we find "the best part of our knowledge" in every class on our schedule.

"Time was when even a boarding school girl was satisfied to strap a watch about her ankle to call attention to the slender lines."

"Yes, but in these days of higher aspirations.—"

Mary had a little thought;
It haunted her at night:
To English 1, the thought she brought,
And found—it was too "trite."

A standing grief with some men is that their signature on a hotel register looks unimpressive.

—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

But there are so many people who think that an impressive signature is one that is not legible.

One of the students in English 1 writes: "This is the opinion of some of the greatest FIGURE-HEADS in American education."

How pat sometimes are the remarks even of a freshman!

The modesty of a girl with an exaggerated V-neck gown is as much affected as the modesty of the man who looks through his fingers.

"The manager of the most popular dance hall in New York bars cheek dancing."

"What has he substituted?"

The girl who thinks that the fun of college life consists in breaking rules won't like it in heaven if the angels behave themselves.

"What! Have you seen 'Up in Mabel's Room'?"

"If you had left out the exclamation point I shouldn't have answered you."

It is said that "the Allies will retaliate for the fall of Venizelos." It seems that the citizens of Greece neglected consulting London and Paris before casting their ballots. What was it we used to hear about "self-determination"?

Baptists Plan New Church

A two hundred and fifty thousand dollar church is to be erected just across the street from Columbia Hall by the Baptists of Missouri. The Baptist churches throughout the state will give about seventy-five per cent of the total amount and Columbia will raise the remaining twenty-five per cent. The Baptist State Convention at its recent meeting in St. Joseph was enthusiastic in its support of the proposition.

"The Baptist boys and girls who come here," said Dr. T. W. Young, pastor of the Columbia Baptist Church, "must be given adequate facilities for religious worship and every opportunity for Christian service. The present church building is hardly large enough to meet the needs of the normal Baptist population of the town, to say nothing of the hundreds of Baptist students who come to Columbia every year and who should by all means have the privileges of a good church home."

The committees who are working on the matter expect the money to be pledged by next spring. "We expect an enthusiastic response from people all over the state," said Dr. Young, "for they will realize that a gift toward the new church in Columbia is an investment in the religious welfare of their own boys and girls."
